The use of force by states is controlled by both customary international law and by treaty law. The UN Charter reads in article 2: All members shall refrain in their international relations from the threat or use of force against the territorial integrity or political independence of any state, or in any other manner inconsistent with the purposes of the United Nations. This principle is now considered to be a part of customary international law, and has the effect of banning the use of armed fo

The use of force is regulated by several different regimes of international law. General public international law and the law of the United Nations Charter govern the legality of the resort to the use of force between States. This is referred to as the ius ad bellum. It is important to note that IHL 's application does not, in any way, depend on ius ad bellum determinations of the legality of resort to force.
